

IPHQ Quality Awards Program 2005 Road School

As announced at the 2004 Road School, the Indiana Partnership for Highway Quality (represented by INDOT, FHWA, and the Indiana Highway Industry) will continue its annual Quality Awards Program at the 2005 Road School. This Program is to encourage quality and innovation in highway and other transportation construction in the State of Indiana. These awards will recognize the outstanding achievement in local agency and INDOT projects. The awards will be offered in four categories:

Pavement – Urban;

Pavement – Rural;

Bridges;

Special Projects. (Including Transportation Enhancement Projects)

Each category has two levels of awards, one for larger projects and another for smaller projects. Projects substantially completed October 1, 2003 to December 31, 2004 will be considered for these awards.

While construction quality will be the primary consideration in judging projects, other factors considered will include safety, customer focus, innovation, teamwork, and the long-term impact of the project. The application form along with the instructions for filling it out is enclosed and will also be available on the following websites on or after October 15, 2004
